

Radon Checklist for Sellers' Agents

Talking with your clients about the risks of radon is important. Use this checklist as a guide to advising your client, and steps to take depending on the situation.

For further professional information, see the Radon Guideline. For information to share with your clients, see the Radon Consumer Information.

DISCUSS RADON WITH YOUR CLIENT

- Explain what radon gas is and its health implications
- Advise your client to review radon information in the BCFSAs Radon Consumer Guide
- Advise your client of radon limits which constitute a material latent defect

IF YOUR CLIENT HAS NOT TESTED THEIR HOME BEFORE IT IS LISTED

- Discuss with your client whether their home is in an identified higher risk area and consider suggesting that they test their home for radon if they have not
- Discuss options that a buyer may consider such as a holdback for testing and possible remediation

IF THE TEST RESULTS ARE 200 BQ/M³ OR HIGHER AND REMEDIATION HAS BEEN COMPLETED

- Ask your client for a copy of the certified test results
- Advise your client that if substantial time has passed since the test has been done another test may be prudent
- Advise your client if renovations to the home have been completed since the test another test may be prudent
- Review the BCFSAs radon guideline and regulatory standards information for more information on remediated properties

IF THE TEST RESULTS ARE 200 BQ/M³ OR HIGHER AND REMEDIATION HAS NOT BEEN COMPLETED

- Advise your client that these levels constitute a material latent defect
- Advise your client that you must disclose to all potential buyers that the radon levels exceed 200 Bq/m³
- Advise your client to consult with a C-NRPP certified professional about remediation options
- Discuss options that a buyer may consider such as a holdback for remediation
